Barred Plymouth Rocks
Meet Hattie!

Hattie is a Barred Plymouth Rock!

She is a friendly, curious, and confident hen who lives at Triple G Farms. Hattie is Henrietta's best friend! She loves exploring the farm, foraging in the yard, and keeping everyone entertained with her cheerful clucks.

A Friendly, Curious, and Loyal Farm Friend

About the Breed

Barred Plymouth Rocks are one of the most popular chicken breeds in the United States. They were developed in the 1800s and are known for their beautiful black-and-white barred feathers, friendly personalities, hardiness, and excellent egg-laying ability.

5 Fun Facts About Barred Plymouth Rocks

1. They have distinctive black-and-white barred feathers.
2. They are friendly, calm, and easy to handle.
3. They are excellent layers of large brown eggs.
4. They are hardy and do well in many weather conditions.
5. They are great for families and make wonderful backyard chickens.

What Makes Hattie Special?

Hattie is curious, confident, and full of personality! She loves being with Henrietta, exploring the farm, and looking for tasty bugs and seeds. Hattie is a wonderful example of how chickens can be friendly, fun, and rewarding farm friends.

How to Care for a Chicken

- Food & Water: A healthy diet of layer feed, clean water, and kitchen scraps in moderation keeps Hattie strong and healthy.
- Clean Coop: A clean, dry coop keeps hens safe, comfortable, and happy.
- Fresh Air & Space: Chickens need room to roam, scratch, and forage during the day.
- Safety: A secure coop and run help protect chickens from predators.
- Kindness: Gentle handling and care help chickens feel safe and loved.

Did You Know?

Barred Plymouth Rocks usually lay 4 to 6 large brown eggs each week. They start laying eggs around 5 to 6 months old. Each egg can take about 24 to 26 hours to form inside the hen before it is laid.

Let's Learn Together!

- What do you think makes Hattie and Henrietta such good friends?
- How can we be kind and respectful around chickens?
- Why do you think chickens need a safe coop?
- What are some ways we can help take care of Hattie and keep her healthy and happy?

Chickens are a gift from God.